

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The completion of my doctoral dissertation is the most rewarding academic achievement in my life. This research study has been successfully conducted with not only my constant and hard effort but considerable and enthusiastic support from many others as well. Thus, I would like to take this opportunity to express my immense gratitude to all those people who have given their invaluable assistance and support.

First and foremost, I am extremely grateful to my thesis advisor, Dr. Sirinthorn Seepho, for her insightful guidance, invaluable advice, constructive comments, and practical suggestions that highly motivated me throughout the thesis process. My thesis would be impossible without her generous support.

Secondly, I would also like to give heartfelt thanks and endless recognition to the IT expert Cuong Cao The Huynh from the University of An Giang, Vietnam, for his endless patience and constant effort spent on constructing the CLE or the ELT Nexus website. This study might have confronted numerous technological problems while operating without his enthusiasm and devotedness.

Thirdly, I am profoundly indebted to the committees who generously provided knowledge and expertise and offered their considerate guidance, as well as valuable suggestions and recommendations to make this thesis successful.

Fourthly, I wish to extend my special appreciation to all 40 pre-service English teachers at the Faculty of Foreign Languages, Tôn Đức Thắng University and 15 in-service EFL teachers and researchers who volunteered to participate in this research study so that I could complete my thesis.

Fifthly, I would love to express my sincere thanks to all my friends who encouraged and supported me unconditionally. Special thanks should also go to one of my dearest colleagues and classmates, Danh Cong Vu, for his extended support, genuine caring, and concern.

Finally, and most importantly, I would like to show my warmest thanks to family members, including my dear wife, my elder brother, and my mother, who kept inspiring and encouraging me to overcome difficulties and challenges in all my educational endeavors. Without their constant encouragement and support, I might have given up my doctoral study.
