

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This thesis was completed with researchers well supported and assisted. Both academic and research operations from various individuals and groups including:

First, I would like to thank my thesis advisor, Asst. Prof. Dr. Thitiporn Machikowa, who consultant in statistics.

Second, I would to sincere gratitude to my thesis co-advisor, Asst. Prof. Dr. Sodchol Wonprasaid, who helped solve problems, guided, encouraged, and assisted in making this successful of my thesis.

Third, I would like to thank The Center for Scientific and Technology Equipment 3 (F3), Suranaree University of Technology, there is support for facilitation, and advice on the use of tools and equipment.

Fourth, I would like to thank the farm staff, Suranaree University of Technology that help and support operations in both field and greenhouse. and the KI sugarcane group for the place that supported my thesis experiments such as experimental areas.

In addition, I would like to thank all my brothers and sisters in Soil Laboratory, who helped provide advice, guidance, and encouragement in the work of this thesis.

Finally, I hope my research will be helpful for those who are interested in studying in this regard.

PENNAPA SRISAWAT